Abstract

Our Medical Inventory Software Centralizes Purchasing and Distribution. If you keep stock on location you’ll need a Just-In-Time (JIT) medical inventory management software system that centralizes your purchasing and your distribution processes and includes medical inventory management, logistics management and materials management capabilities.

With advanced bar-code processing and online reporting you can access, track and maintain accurate medical inventory levels and automate a significant portion of your procurement process.

Automated record keeping accurately records when your medical supplies, equipment and other medical inventory items were received, how long they have been stored and when they were used.
